

1. Overview: The corporation, Canyon Hikers, was looking to build a website that would help bring more tourist to visit. The website was made to promote themselves and inform people why they should visit. The website had to be user-friendly and easy to use, and aesthetically pleasing for the viewer.
2. Problem statement: the biggest problem that the company was trying to resolve was getting people to visit, bringing more tourist in the state.
3. Users and audience: The main audience for this website are mainly hikers and nature enthusiasts, who are looking for new adventures in the outdoors. In addition, anyone who is generally curious about the Grand Canyon, and who are looking to visit.
4. Role and responsibilities: I had several responsibilities for this website. I was in charge of creating a mockup, prototype, and creating the code for the website. This was a solo project, so I worked on my own to create this website from start to finish.
5. Challenges: One of the biggest challenges along the way was figuring out what would work best for this website.
6. What you did and why: I made a simple website that would encourage more people to visit the Grand Canyon. I did this by adding a picture of the Grand Canyon as the background of the top half of the website. I also added a sign-up box so they could sign up to get more information and new notification through their email and phone number.
7. Result: The website was great since it encouraged more people to travel to the Grand Canyon. My test subjects found it easy to use, and very self-explanatory. We hope this website helps the Canyon Hikers get more tourism
